OVERARCHING VISION

I have a dream...

That there is a space off the beaten track of life where throngs of people gather who are paralyzed by the gut wrenching pain of rejection from the people whom they loved, trusted and served beside. Disillusioned by pain they disqualify themselves forever engaging in life, carrying baggage of guilt, shame and self-condemnation.

I have a dream...

I have a dream...

That in this safe, sacred space, the wounded warriors discover their true identity, they discern their significance in God's eyes, and align their hearts with God's heart to capture his dream for them. Dynamically engaging back into life, wiser, renewed, restored and passionate about living, loving and serving once again.
